THE ENVIRONMENTAL CONDITION IN EUROPE AND ITALY

STATE OF THE ENVIRONMENT REPORT 2020, ENVIRONMENTAL DATA YEARBOOK AND SYSTEM REPORTS FOCUS ON THE REGIONS WITH THE SYSTEM REPORTS

The global emergency caused by the pandemic of COVID-19 has forced us to confront new environmental challenges.

Today more than ever, we ought to know the state of health of our homes and of what surrounds us. ISPRA and EEA are inviting the public to follow a video conference, which will be streamed from Rome, Copenhagen and Brussels. The conference will introduce the data and information that regard the environment's situation in Europe and Italy, with also a specific focus to the Italian regions.

The President of ISPRA and SNPA, Stefano LAPORTA will lead from Rome the conference and connect with the Executive Director of the European Environment Agency in Copenhagen, Hans BRUYNINCKX, in order to analyse the health conditions of our planet and in relation to the countries of the EU.

The following speakers will participate at the conference:

David SASSOLI
President of European Parliament
Giuseppe CONTE
Prime Minister of Italy
Sergio COSTA
Minister of the Environment

The Director General of ISPRA, Alessandro BRATTI will unveil the lights and shadows of Italy.
The Vice-President of SNPA, Carlo Emanuele PEPE will focus on the regional situation.

The connection will start on the 3rd June 2020 from 10:00 (GMT+1) via the following link:

SOER is the most complete European environmental evaluation that gives an in-depth analysis of the situation in order to reach the strategic goals of the 2020 and for the future. Although constant progress has occurred throughout these twenty years, the set targets won't be reached without an urgent action in the next decade.

The Yearbook ISPRA 2020 documents the state of the environment in Italy.

The System Rapport SNPA represents the experiences of the regions.
